

The flower on the ground
Cries to the sky
The grass gathers round
And caringly asks why

Two lovers lie
In the field by the lake
Spending the love filled night together til' they wake.

And then there was one.
Who never knew
Of the love of two
And died^{alone} as the cold wind blew.